

Cubes of Light

Six light gabions are featured in the Bridgeport Condominium courtyard garden as part of a permanent installation that will surely strike a chord with the curious.

Gabions are wire baskets typically filled with rocks and then stacked, creating walls to structurally support river banks and steep highway shoulders.

KLA has elaborated on their function by constructing gabions with glass slag in lieu of rock. These industrial style sculptures recycle an industrial by-product material into a light feature.

The Bridgeport Condominium courtyard is the first courtyard in the River District designed to be open to the public.
